MRS. SHORT TAKEN OUT OF HOSPITAL

Mother of Wounded Chorus Girl Finds a Home.

GOES TO NEW YORK NEXT WEEK

Now Living at Home of G. H. Wood in Eighth Street—Still Suffering from Wounds Inflicted by Husband, Whose Death Was Recently Made Known to Her.

Although weak and suffering from her wounds, Mrs. Evelyn Short, more generally known as "Evelyn Howard," the chorus girl, left Casualty Hospital for her mother's temporary home, at 233 Eighth street northeast, yesterday, on the third weekly anniversary of the day she was murderously assaulted by her husband in front of the Union Station. She is by no means well. Her removal by her mother, Mrs. H. A. Louis, was at the instance of physicians, who thought the quiet of a home would be more beneficial than hospital treatment. Evelyn Howard—she still retains her stage name in speaking of herself—is in a pitifully nervous condition. Those who are caring for her find it necessary to exercise great caution in the avoidance of sudden noises, and no startling news is told her. Because of her nervousness, the rounds occasionally heard in the Casualty Hospital caused outbursts sometimes lasting half an hour.

Goes to New York Monday. She will be taken to New York next Monday by her mother and F. H. Short, a playwright, who is coming to this city for that purpose.

The transfer from the hospital was made at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Louis called for her daughter about twenty minutes before that time in a closed carriage. The girl was dressed and wrapped in heavy cloaks to preclude all chances of additional injury to her left lung, which is badly congested. She was driven to the home of G. H. Wood, less than two blocks away, where Mrs. Louis has been stopping since her arrival in town.

Arriving there, the girl was prepared for bed. The short trip tired her, and, although she maintained her cheerfulness during the remainder of the day, evidence of weariness were to be seen in her faltering speech and the feeble gestures of her hands.

Because of her weakness, her mother said, the girl had not been told of her husband's suicide until last Tuesday. Mrs. Louis, during the previous days, had furnished her daughter with fictitious reports of the man's improvement, that she might not worry.

When she was told Short had died a few moments after she was carried to Casualty Hospital, the girl wept hysterically. She seems now to be sorry for her husband. No trace of the bitterness expressed by the mother is to be found in her attitude. She is eager, she says, to get back to New York, although she will be unable to return to her profession for a year or more.

Will Return to Stage.

"Of course, I'm going back on the stage some day," she said last night, "but I can't say now when that time will be. I don't think I'll leave theatrical work for years to come. It's the excitement and change of the life that I like."

"Even after the underdog like the one you have undergone?" she was asked.

"Even after that," she replied. "Nothing will ever make me love the work less."

"My mother is my manager now," she said with a weak smile, "and she's paying all expenses. I've turned the money over to her to keep."

The girl said she was perhaps the only person in Washington knowing the name of the man who mailed the $25 check to the police here to bury her husband. She says it came from Champ Pickens, of Denver, a cousin of the dead man.

"My husband's relatives," she said, "had nothing to do with him for years. His parents are of a wealthy family, residing in Livingston, Ala. When he first met me he engaged my sympathy by telling me he was an outcast. I did not know the details then, but I afterward learned his conduct caused his family to disown him."

Kept Name a Secret. "His cousin declined to send his name because he did not want to be identified with Will, even after his death."

Three weeks of hospital confinement has caused the girl to lose considerably in weight. She is pale and much slighter than when she was first taken to the hospital. Her childish expression makes her eight years of married life seem an absurd untruth. In talking she retains her almost childlike view of things. None of the bitter cynicism one would expect to find in a woman who has suffered can be traced in her talk.

Forty Hours' Devotion Begins. Forty hours' devotion was opened yesterday at St. Ann's Church, Tennallytown, at a solemn high mass which was celebrated at 10:30 o'clock by Rev. John Mark Handley, C. S. P., of the Apostolic Mission House, assisted by Rev. Joseph Mellon, pastor, as deacon, and Rev. Nicholas Jassell, subdeacon. A procession of the children and clergy of the parish followed the mass, the children chanting the "Pange Lingua." At the vespers service at 7:30 last evening, Rev. Joseph Foley, of St. Paul's Church, Baltimore, preached.

LAYMEN CONCLUDE DISTRICT CAMPAIGN

Notable Mass Meeting Forecasts Good Results.

AMBASSADOR BRYCE SPEAKS

Financial Support Pledged by Various Denominations to Missionary Movement and Delegates Adopt Resolution to Make Contribution from Washington Total $100,000.

Something of a retrospect of the four days' campaign in the District by the Laymen's Missionary Movement in its effort to spread the gospel world-wide in this generation was given at the mass meeting at the New National Theater yesterday afternoon.

The meeting in connection with the campaign in the District. It was made notable by the presence of Right Hon. James Bryce, British Ambassador, who presided at the last hour of the meeting, and by the reception of reports which showed life in the District had been quickened to the extent of a liberal loosening of purse strings.

Tell Results of Campaign.

What the campaign has accomplished was variously expressed. Alfred E. Marling, of New York, made a hit when he said "the hour have been sweetened and the sting have loosened up." Commissioner Macfarland voiced a similar sentiment when he declared with good humor that even the Presbyterians had warmed up.

He illustrated his point with the story of the Virginia woman whose ice cream was thought to be superior to that made by her neighbors. Being pressed for the secret of the flavor, the frugal housewife admitted she froze it against the Presbyterian church. But in view of recent developments it was agreed that such a recipe would not hold good in the District.

John R. Mott, of New York, emphasized in his address that the end of the exploration is the beginning of the enterprise. Ambassador Bryce, in assuming the chair for the last half of the session, spoke of the impression made upon him by the wise and weighty words of President Taft at the opening of the convention last Thursday. The Ambassador referred to the President's discussion of the Philippine question. Mr. Bryce declared the reasons are vital for urgency of the missionary question at this time.

Gifford Pinchot presided during the opening exercises of the meeting. Seated on the platform were Ambassador Bryce, Right Rev. Alfred E. Marling, Bishop of Washington, who offered prayer; William Jay Scheffelin, of New York; Samuel R. Capen, of Boston, president of the American board of commissioners of foreign missions; J. Campbell White, of New York; Alfred E. Marling, of New York; J. M. Stick, of Baltimore; W. F. Harold, of Philadelphia; Rev. W. L. DeVries, William Jessup, Admiral Mordecai T. Endicott, Rev. Randolph H. McKim, Commissioner Macfarland, W. E. Duke, of Richmond, Va.; Joshua Levering, of Baltimore; L. E. Breuninger, W. B. Robinson, W. L. Hiltabide, Rev. Dr. James H. Taylor, H. A. Thrift, Joseph H. Scott, N. W. Rowe, of Toronto, and Prof. Mitchell Carroll.

After presenting Mr. Rowle, of Toronto, who told of the changed attitude of men toward missions in consequence of the laymen's movement, Mr. Pinchot introduced Commissioner Macfarland, the assemblage rising in his honor. Mr. Macfarland read the resolutions of the executive committee, which were adopted.

The Resolutions Adopted.

The resolutions laud the efforts of the men affiliated with the movement, and include recommendations for the appointment in every congregation of a missionary committee, for the adoption of a weekly system of offerings for the missions, and for a canvass in the District for contributions that may total $100,000 for the coming year. The delegates also adopted the suggestion that a public meeting be held on December 12 to hear reports of the canvassers.

Reports of the different denominational rallies were made, every denomination agreeing to raise its proportionate share to bring the total missionary contributions up to $100,000 a year. Reports for the denominations of the sums to be raised were made as follows: Admiral Endicott, for the Episcopal Church, $20,000; to be placed in the hands of the board of missions of his church; Prof. Mitchell Carroll, for the Baptists, $15,000; L. E. Breuninger, for the Methodist Episcopal Church, $20,000; W. B. Robinson, for the Presbyterians North, $25,000; W. W. Millan, for the Methodist Episcopal Church South, $20,000; Dr. James H. Taylor, for the Presbyterians South, $5,000; Joseph A. Scott, for the Free Disciples, and H. A. Thrift, for the Congregationalists, pledged an increase of 100 per cent in missionary contributions. W. L. Hiltabide, for the Lutherans, pledged the earnest support of that body.

Ambassador Bryce was warmly greeted, the audience rising.

The Evening Service.

At the evening service in the Church of the Epiphany last evening, the cause of the laymen's missionary movement was presented by John W. Wood and W. J. Scheffelin, both of New York, workers who bore a prominent part in the lay convention.

The evening service was read by the rector of the church, Rev. Dr. Randolph H. McKim, who presented the speakers.

Dr. McKim also read the resolutions presented by the executive committee, and adopted at the mass meeting in the New National Theater yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Scheffelin told of the inception of the laymen's missionary movement during the centennial celebration of the "hay stack" prayer meeting. The men concerned in its organization had ideas beyond denominational lines, and from the start were resolved to put first things first. The speaker explained the object of the movement was the evangelization, not the conversion, of the world in this generation.

The vested choir sang as a procession. "Go Forward, Christian Soldier," and as a recessional, "Work for the Night Is Coming." During the service the hymns, "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun" and "Christ for the World We Sing," were sung.

SUFFRAGETTES WILL SPEAK.

Militant Women to Voice Demands at Food Show To-night.

The management of the food show has decided to have this evening known as "Suffragette Night," and five-minute addresses will be made by some of Washington's militant women.

The affair will be held under the auspices of the college branch of the Equal Suffrage Association, and a large attendance of seminarists and college students is expected.

Complete machinery for the model bakery arrived in town Saturday night, and was set up yesterday. Manager Wilfahrt says there will now be bread for all, without charge. The management of the exhibit will add a baby show as an attraction. The best all-around baby will be determined through the medium of the ballot.
